Wild Shetland

The Shetland Isles is one of my favourite place in the UK for wildlife. This talk highlights some of the key species of birds and mammals that breed on and call Shetland their home.

ABOUT

Steve is an award-winning professional wildlife photographer based in Scarborough, North Yorkshire. He has been a keen naturalist and photographer for over 30 years, lived on the Yorkshire Coast all of his life and believes there is no better place for variety of habitats and amazing wildlife.

Inspired by the natural world around him Steve captures incredible wildlife images. In 2013 he was "Commended" in the "Wildlife Photographer of the Year Awards", "Big Picture USA – Natural World Photography Competition" and "British Wildlife Photographer of the Year Awards" in which in 2015 he was "Highly Commended". His work has been published in national and regional media and magazines, leaflets, websites and publications. Steve has also been featured on BBC Countryfile, Channel 4's Sunday Brunch, regional television programmes, and recently being a researcher/location assistant on Channel 5's "Yorkshire | A Year in the Wild" series.

In the afternoon session we will have a show and tell. Members bring along two prints to discuss.
